

Bold, New Frontiers of Legal Research

Wednesday, Oct. 18, 2017 | 11:00 a.m. – 12:00 p.m.

Technology is changing the way we do many things, and researching the law is no exception. Startups have entered the field and are disrupting the way established databases work. In this class, learn about new legal research platforms and techniques that offer innovative ways to search the law and locate relevant results. Also learn how looming changes involving big data and artificial intelligence will soon alter how we do legal research.

Class covers:

- Startups disrupting the legal research market
- New legal research platforms and techniques
- How big data and artificial intelligence may alter how we do legal research
