Janesville, by Amy Goldstein

Thursday, October 27, 2022 – 6:30pm – 8:00pm

---ZOOM INFORMATION WILL BE EMAILED TO REGISTRANTS PRIOR TO CLASS START TIME---

Join LA Law Library's book discussion group via Zoom as we continue to explore income inequality in America by reading Janesville: An American Story, by Amy Goldstein. Janesville, Wisconsin was the home of General Motors oldest operating assembly plant until GM closed the plant two days before Christmas 2008. Goldstein paints an intimate picture of blue-collar workers and their families who are faced with uncertainty, doubt, depression and the inability to care for their loved ones after closure of the plant and shows why it is so hard in the 21st century to recreate a healthy, prosperous working class.

About the book and author:

- Goldstein is a Pulitzer Prize winning Washington Post reporter
- Financial Times and McKinsey Business Book of the Year (2017)
- Winner of J. Anthony Lukas Book Prize for Narrative Nonfiction (2018)
- New York Times and Washington Post Notable Book of 2017
- An NPR, Wall Street Journal, Economist and Business Insider Best Book of 2017
